Meet Your Host – William Taylor

How long have you been an announcer at WCPE, and what attracted you to The Classical Station? I grew up listening to The Classical Station; it was always my favorite station. An irreplaceable memory from my childhood was leaving my piano lessons having learned Beethoven’s works and getting to hear his music on the radio on the ride home. I have been announcing at WCPE for around three-and-a-half months.

How did you get involved in broadcasting, and do you have any exciting stories to share with us? The Classical Station was the first (and only) place I ever wanted to work in broadcasting, and it is always exciting! My original background is in music/recording.

What is your favorite genre of music? Who are some of your favorite composers and artists? There are far too many great genres to choose! Although I usually gravitate towards instrumental music, I am positively enthralled with the choral works of Morten Lauridsen and Eric Whitacre.

Do you have a background in music performance? I have a limited background in performance, but I am a recent graduate with a degree in songwriting. I have had some wonderful opportunities in academia to chase my passions with talented people, which included some performances I am sure to never forget.

Have you seen any performances around the world that stand out in your memory? My favorite recent performance was being able to witness the Nashville Symphony perform the finished score to my favorite movie, Back to the Future, as they screened the movie.
For over four decades, The Classical Station has fulfilled its mission of broadcasting Great Classical Music around the world. Because we have always been a nonprofit radio station, fulfilling our mission was only possible through the generous support of listeners like you.

Whenever you tune to The Classical Station, you’ll hear music that was written in centuries past by the finest composers in history. Throughout history, many composers relied on patrons to fund their creativity. Composers such as Joseph Haydn and Felix Mendelssohn named many of their pieces after their friends, patrons, and sponsors.

During the Classical era, Haydn, Mozart, and Beethoven dedicated many of their symphonies, concertos, and sonatas to their patrons. Even composers of the twentieth century relied on generosity of philanthropists and foundations.

Hundreds of years later, their music is still heard thanks to the financial support of their benefactors. The legacies of these individuals are enshrined forever in the music that has been passed down for generations.

A planned gift to The Classical Station is an impactful way that you can define your Legacy. Just like Beethoven and Mozart, we need patrons to support our mission, allowing us to share this timeless music for years to come.

The Classical Station will honor those who have made a planned gift to the station in our Legacy Society. As a member of this society, and with your permission, we will acknowledge your support with a Patron Announcement on the air. Please reach out the Member Services team, to learn about the many ways that you can help ensure that The Classical Station will always be there to continue broadcasting Great Classical Music.
Program Notes

December 4 Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart
8:00 p.m.: Concerto in C for Flute and Harp, K. 299

Indulge in the exquisite beauty of Mozart’s Concerto in C for Flute and Harp, K. 299, a masterpiece that showcases the genius of this legendary composer. This enchanting concerto, composed in the late eighteenth century, marries the ethereal tones of the flute with the graceful resonance of the harp in a harmonious duet that transcends time.

December 13 Sergei Rachmaninoff
10:00 a.m.: Piano Concerto no. 3 in D Minor, op. 30

Prepare to be swept away by this piece’s sheer virtuosity and emotional depth. With its lush melodies, thundering crescendos, and breathtaking cadenzas, this concerto is a captivating journey through the full range of human emotions. As the piano and orchestra engage in a passionate dialogue, listeners are treated to an unforgettable musical experience that leaves them spellbound.

December 17 Joseph Haydn
9:00 p.m.: Mass in Honor of the Blessed Virgin Mary

Celebrate the spirit of Christmas with the uplifting calls of Haydn’s Mass. This exquisite composition, known for its radiant choral passages and divine harmonies, perfectly encapsulates the joy and reverence of the holiday season. Haydn’s masterful use of choir and orchestra conjures a sense of spiritual transcendence that warms the heart and fills the soul with wonder.

December 23 Michel Corrette
11:00 a.m.: Noel Symphony no. 5 in A Minor

Elevate your Christmas spirit! Let the Noel Symphony’s enchanting sounds be the soundtrack to your festivities, filling your heart with warmth and your home with the spirit of the season.

December 30 Jean Sibelius
3:00 p.m.: Tapiola, op. 112

Delve into the mesmerizing world of Jean Sibelius with his hauntingly evocative tone poem. Composed in 1926, this masterpiece showcases Sibelius’s unparalleled ability to capture the essence of nature and mythology through music. Tapiola immerses listeners in the mysterious depths of the Finnish forest, with its brooding atmosphere and lush orchestration conjuring a sense of primeval enchantment.
January 2 Ralph Vaughan Williams
12:00 p.m.: Fantasia on Greensleeves
Experience the timeless allure of Vaughan Williams’ Fantasia on Greensleeves, a musical gem that effortlessly weaves together centuries of enchantment. This exquisite composition, based on the beloved folk tune “Greensleeves”, showcases Vaughan Williams’ genius in blending the old and the new.

January 6 Anton Arensky
10:00 a.m. Suite no. 3 for Two Pianos, op. 33 (Variations)
Discover an enchanting world as two pianos come together to create a harmonious masterpiece. This remarkable composition, written in the late nineteenth century, showcases Arensky’s exquisite craftsmanship and innovation in the realm of chamber music. With its poetic interplay between the two pianos, this piece is a testament to Arensky’s enduring legacy and a treasure for classical music enthusiasts seeking a profound listening experience.

January 12 Pyotr Ilyich Tchaikovsky
8:00 p.m. Symphony no. 1 in G Minor, op. 13 (Winter Dreams)
Embrace the winter wonderland with Winter Dreams. As you listen, you’ll be transported to a frosty landscape, where snowflakes dance and the crisp air fills with anticipation. Tchaikovsky’s Winter Dreams is a musical journey through the magic of winter, capturing its beauty and serenity, making it the perfect soundtrack for cozy evenings by the fire or snowy adventures outdoors. Immerse yourself in the enchantment of this symphony and let it warm your heart during the cold winter months.

January 16 Franz Liszt
12:00 p.m. “Liebestraum” no. 3 in A-flat
Indulge in the timeless elegance of Franz Liszt’s cherished classic that continues to captivate audiences with its romantic allure. This exquisite piano composition, known as the "Dream of Love", weaves a tender and passionate narrative through its delicate and expressive melodies. Liszt’s mastery of the piano is on full display in this enchanting piece, making it an enduring favorite for anyone seeking a musical journey into the depths of love and emotion.

January 28 Edvard Grieg
4:00 p.m. Lyric Pieces no. 5, op. 54
This Norwegian composer’s lyrical genius shines brightly in Lyric Pieces. This delightful composition, part of Grieg’s larger collection of piano miniatures, transports listeners to a realm of poetic and melodic beauty. Grieg’s ability to evoke the essence of nature and the human spirit through his music is truly mesmerizing, and in Lyric Pieces no. 5, he weaves a captivating musical tale filled with tenderness and nostalgia.

February 2 Joseph Haydn
8:00 p.m. Haydn: Symphony no. 47 in G (Palindrome)
Explore the genius of Joseph Haydn with the symphony famously known as the "Palindrome." This remarkable composition showcases Haydn’s inventive and playful spirit, as the entire symphony can be played forwards and backwards, creating a musical marvel. With its ingenious structure, listeners embark on a journey of delightful surprises, where themes are seamlessly inverted, producing a symphonic palindrome like no other.

February 7 Fernando Sor
10:00 p.m. Variations on a Theme by Mozart, op. 9
In this exquisite composition, Sor takes Mozart’s timeless melody and weaves a tapestry of intricate variations that showcase the guitar’s rich tonal palette. As you listen, you’ll be transported to a world where classical elegance meets the romantic spirit, with Sor’s virtuosity shining brightly. His deft handling of the instrument and innovative variations make this piece a captivating gem for both guitar aficionados and classical music enthusiasts alike.

February 12 Edward Elgar
2:00 p.m. Bavarian Dances, op. 27
This captivating orchestral suite showcases Elgar’s masterful composition skills, as he expertly weaves together Bavarian folk tunes into a delightful tapestry of sound. The Bavarian Dances are a joyful and celebratory journey that evokes the spirit of traditional Bavarian festivals, making them a delightful addition to any classical music lover’s repertoire.

February 29 J.S. Bach
12:00 p.m. Jesu, Joy of Man’s Desiring
Jesu, Joy of Man’s Desiring holds profound significance in the history of music. Composed by Bach in the early eighteenth century as part of his larger work, the Cantata BWV 147, this piece exemplifies the Baroque era’s focus on intricate counterpoint and sacred themes. Its enduring popularity lies in its ability to bridge the gap between sacred and secular music, offering a transcendent experience that resonates with audiences of all backgrounds.

Listen for the Classical Conundrum, Monday through Thursday during Rise and Shine.

January 18  Verdi's La Forza del Destino
Giuseppe Verdi's masterpiece is filled with intrigue. Alvaro (Domingo) and Leonora's (Price) love for each other takes a tragic turn when Leonora's family get involved. (Archival broadcast by the late Al Rocchio.)

January 25  Wagner's Götterdämmerung
Wagner's genius is center stage in this apocalyptic conclusion of the Ring Cycle. Siegfried (Windgassen) has died. As a final eulogy to him, Brunnhilde (Nilsson) rides into the flaming Valhalla.

February 1  Scott Joplin's Treemonisha
Scott Joplin's Treemonisha, composed in 1911, celebrates African American music—enjoy spirited dances, spirituals, and blues!

February 8  Mozart's The Abduction from the Seraglio
In this comical romp filled with delightful and virtuosic music, Kostanze (Gruberova) and her English maid, Blonde (Battle), are held captive in a harem. Their lovers try to rescue them using outlandish antics. Osmin's (Talvela) third act aria is the most impressive aria for bass in all of Mozart's operas.

February 15  Purcell's Dido and Aeneas/The Fairy Queen
Here's a double-bill providing both tragedy and comedy! The Baroque gem, Dido and Aeneas, follows a tale of tragic love, while The Fairy Queen is based on A Midsummer Night's Dream.

February 22  Rossini's L'italiana in Algeri
Premiered at Covent Garden in 1755, Handel's Ariodante is still popular in today's operatic repertoire; it is considered one of his finest operas.

The Making of Handel’s Messiah

By Andrew Gant
Bodleian Library, University of Oxford 2020

Reviewed by Greysolynne Hyman

Any mention of Handel’s Messiah is likely to prompt you to hear some of the Western world’s most glorious music in your head. Reading The Making of Handel’s Messiah by Andrew Gant provides you with the history of this piece and a biography of George Frederic Handel in a very enjoyable format. The numerous illustrations add to the value of this book.

The Messiah was not written on commission or for any special event. Composed in 1741, it was not performed until 1742. Operas were not permitted during Lent, but an oratorio with its sacred text and lack of traditionally opulent staging was acceptable during that holy season, and Handel, ever the entrepreneur, authorized Messiah’s premiere during Lent of 1742. Handel used the structure of the music to create theatrical effects— for example, his use of relationships among musical keys produce spectacular effects.

Handel often played the organ and conducted performances of Messiah. His scores were full of instructions, names of soloists, and arrangements specifically for them. In one chapter, Andrew Gant “dishes” on some of the more famous soloists and includes images of them. He provides reproductions of pages of Handel’s scores, thus demonstrating that Handel himself did not have a definitive version of this oratorio. The book has two chapters devoted to the performance history of this work from the eighteenth through the twenty-first century. There has been a lot of variety during all that time; Mr. Gant concludes that there is still no final consensus on how to present this masterpiece and that is just as it should be.

The librettist for Messiah, Charles Jennens, used the King James Bible as the primary source for his text. The relationship between Handel and his librettist was often fraught, at least from Jennens’ perspective, as revealed in letters between them and to his friend, Edward Holdsworth. Excerpts from these letters are included. Appendix One elaborates on Jennens’ scenic structure for Messiah and Appendix Two gives an outline for performance of the oratorio with Jennens’ text and Handel’s instructions for accompaniment.

At the end of the book, there are notes for each of the chapters, suggested further reading, and an annotated discography. The book is lovely with its formatting and angelic cover design but, most importantly, with its informative, pleasurable reading about Handel’s masterpiece: Messiah.

Slovak Sinfonietta, Matthias Manasi: Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart: Symphonies Nos. 34, 35, 36

Reviewed by Emily Moss

The Slovak Sinfonietta’s latest album, featuring Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart’s Symphonies Nos. 34, 35, and 36, is a musical masterpiece that takes listeners on an unforgettable journey through the genius of Mozart. With delicately balanced performances, intense pianissimo dynamics, and precise articulation, this recording is a true testament to the orchestra’s exceptional talent and understanding of Mozart’s intricate compositions.

One of the standout qualities of this album is the orchestra’s ability to delicately balance the various elements within each symphony. Mozart’s symphonies often feature intricate melodies interwoven with rich harmonies and playful rhythms, and the Slovak Sinfonietta’s performance strikes a perfect equilibrium among these elements. The result is a sound that is both lush and transparent, allowing every musical detail to shine through.

The youthful approach to cadences in this recording seems to resurrect the composer’s most personal self. Mozart’s music often calls for delicate and hushed passages, and the Slovak Sinfonietta executes these moments with breathtaking precision. The softest whispers of music are rendered with a clarity and depth that draw the listener in, creating an atmosphere of profound intimacy.

Perhaps the most remarkable aspect of this album is the orchestra’s ability to seamlessly switch between different moods with the utmost finesse. Each curious turn to a minor key sheds light on the composer’s genius. The transitions from moments of exuberant joy to melancholic introspection are executed with such grace that it feels as if Mozart himself is guiding the orchestra’s interpretation.

The Slovak Sinfonietta’s recording of Mozart’s Symphonies Nos. 34, 35, and 36 is a remarkable achievement in the realm of classical music and a must-listen for any lover of Mozart’s music. This album is a testament to the Slovak Sinfonietta’s exceptional musicianship and their deep appreciation for the genius of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart. It is a musical experience that will captivate and enchant listeners, leaving them with a newfound admiration for the timeless beauty of Mozart’s symphonies.
